

CONTEXT FOR ASTRA

You are my German tutor. I am Kevin, Italian, level A2-B1. My lessons are taught in English by a native German speaker (Stefanie). Today we are reviewing: Indefinite pronouns & relative clauses

Sections covered: 25. Nicos Weg: Pläne machen, das Angebot, anbieten, Relative clauses with indefinite pronouns (alles, nichts, etwas), Indefinite pronouns: jemand, niemand, jeder declension, Dative plural -n ending (mit den Händen, von den Leuten, mit allen Dingen)

LESSON SUMMARY

Kevin reviewed Nicos Weg audio, clarifying 'mit den Händen' (with hands, dative) and fixed expressions 'auf keinen Fall' (in no case) vs. 'auf jeden Fall' (in every case). Core focus: indefinite pronouns (jemand, niemand, etwas, nichts, alle, jeder) combined with relative clauses using 'das' for undefined antecedents. Practiced translating complex sentences embedding relative clauses, including castle scenario ('Ist jemand da?', 'Niemand hat geantwortet'). Clarified 'anbieten' (to offer) vs. 'das Angebot'. Discussed dative plural 'mit allen Dingen, die ich brauche'. Stefanie assigned speaking homework: retell a Nicos Weg story using reported speech, prepare party-planning dialogue for next lesson.

GRAMMAR POINTS

Indefinite pronouns as masculine (jemand, niemand)

→ The pronouns 'jemand' (someone) and 'niemand' (nobody) refer to unspecified persons and decline with masculine endings in written German: nominative jemand/niemand, accusative jemanden/niemanden, dative jemandem/niemandem, genitive jemandes/niemandes. They are singular, have no gender, and take third-person singular verbs. In colloquial speech, endings are often dropped.

e.g. Jemand hat an der Tür geklopft. (Someone knocked on the door.)

e.g. Ich habe jemanden Interessanten kennengelernt. (I met someone interesting yesterday.)

Relative pronoun 'was' with alles/nichts/etwas

→ Indefinite antecedents (alles, nichts, etwas, vieles, manches, wenig) and neuter demonstrative pronouns (das, dasselbe, dasjenige) require the relative pronoun 'was' instead of der/die/das. 'Was' is also used after neuter superlatives and when referring to entire clauses. It is invariable and does not decline.

e.g. Das ist alles, was ich sagen wollte. (That is all that I wanted to say.)

e.g. Es gibt nichts, was wir nicht lösen könnten. (There is nothing that we couldn't solve.)

Dative plural ending -n (mit den Händen, von den Leuten, mit allen Dingen)

→ In the dative plural, German nouns add -n to their plural form unless the plural already ends in -n or -s. This applies after all dative prepositions (mit, von, zu, bei, nach, aus, seit) and with plural dative articles (den). The rule helps German speakers clearly identify the dative case.

e.g. Ich möchte mit den Händen arbeiten. (I want to work with my hands.)

e.g. Einige von den Leuten sind zu spät gekommen. (Some of the people came too late.)

Embedded relative clauses can be moved to end

→ Relative clauses in German can appear immediately after the noun they modify (embedded mid-sentence) or moved to the end of the main clause for clarity and smoother flow. The placement affects sentence rhythm but not meaning. Relative clauses are always separated by commas, and the verb in the relative clause always goes to the end.

e.g. Jeder, der Fußball gerne schaut, spielt auch gerne Fußball. (Everyone who likes watching soccer also likes playing soccer.)

e.g. Ich habe jemanden getroffen, den ich kenne. (I met someone whom I know.)

Genitive vs. von structure

→ German expresses possession using either the genitive case (einige der Leute, das Haus des Mannes) or the 'von + dative' construction (einige von den Leuten, das Haus von dem Mann). Genitive is formal and preferred in written German; 'von + dative' is more common in spoken German and considered standard in colloquial contexts. Both are grammatically correct.

e.g. Einige von den Leuten sind zu spät gekommen. (Some of the people came too late.) [von + dative, spoken]

e.g. Einige der Leute sind zu spät gekommen. (Some of the people came too late.) [genitive, written]

USEFUL PHRASES / REDEMittel

• Auf keinen Fall — In no case / Not at all / Definitely not (Fixed expression using 'auf', not 'in'.

Opposite: auf jeden Fall.)

• Auf jeden Fall — In every case / Definitely / For sure (Fixed expression using 'auf'. Ich will auf jeden Fall in den Urlaub fahren.)

• Ist jemand da? — Is someone there? (Standard question when checking for presence. Alternative: Ist da jemand?)

- Das ist alles, was ich sagen wollte. — That is all that I wanted to say. (Closing phrase; uses 'was' for undefined antecedent 'alles'.)
- Ich habe keine Ahnung — I have no idea (Fixed phrase expressing complete lack of knowledge.)
