

CONTEXT FOR ASTRA

You are my German tutor. I am Kevin, Italian, level A2-B1. My lessons are taught in English by a native German speaker (Stefanie). Today we are reviewing: Travel and vacation small talk

Sections covered: Small talk topics: travel and vacation, Time expressions and duration, Separable verbs in past tense, Superlative forms, Prepositions with verbs

LESSON SUMMARY

Kevin and Stefanie practiced small talk about travel and vacation using typical German conversation questions. They covered topics like arrival times, vacation companions, duration of stay, and reasons for choosing a destination. Key grammar included separable verbs (ankommen), superlatives with and without nouns, and prepositions with dative. Vocabulary focused on travel-related terms and time expressions. The lesson emphasized natural German phrasing through translation exercises and conversational practice, with corrections on verb forms and case usage.

GRAMMAR POINTS

Separable verbs in Perfekt: prefix goes to end

→ Separable verbs like 'ankommen' (to arrive) form the past participle by inserting 'ge-' between the prefix and the stem: an + ge + komm + en → angekommen. The verb uses sein or haben as auxiliary depending on the main verb. In sentences: Wann bist du angekommen? (When did you arrive?)

e.g. Wann bist du hier angekommen? (When did you arrive here?)

e.g. Ich habe die Sonnencreme mitgenommen. (I took the sunscreen along.)

Superlative: am + -sten vs. article + -ste + noun

→ German has two superlative forms: PREDICATIVE (after verbs): 'am + adjective-sten' when no noun follows (Das Haus ist am größten); ATTRIBUTIVE (before nouns): 'article + adjective-ste + ending + noun' (Das ist das größte Haus). The choice depends on whether the superlative modifies a noun directly.

e.g. Dieses Haus ist am größten. (This house is the biggest.)

e.g. Das ist das schönste Meer. (That is the most beautiful sea.)

Time expressions: letzten vs. vorletzten Sonntag

→ 'Letzten Sonntag' = last Sunday (the most recent one that passed). 'Vorletzten Sonntag' = the Sunday before last (two Sundays ago). 'Nächsten Sonntag' = next Sunday (the coming one). These temporal expressions use accusative case (den letzten Sonntag) without preposition.

e.g. Ich bin letzten Sonntag angekommen. (I arrived last Sunday.)

e.g. Ich bin am vorletzten Sonntag angekommen. (I arrived the Sunday before last.)

Verb 'warten' + auf + accusative

→ The verb 'warten' (to wait) requires the preposition 'auf' + accusative case. For complex structures with subordinate clauses, use 'darauf, dass': Sie warten darauf, dass du lachst (They wait for you to laugh). The construction 'warten auf' is fixed and cannot be separated.

e.g. Ich warte auf den Bus. (I'm waiting for the bus.)

e.g. Sie warten darauf, dass du lachst. (They're waiting for you to laugh.)

Future expressed with present tense

→ German commonly uses the present tense (Präsens) for future events when context (time expressions, dates, adverbs) makes the future meaning clear. This is preferred over 'werden + infinitive' when certainty is high: 'Ich bleibe bis Sonntag' (I will stay until Sunday). The future tense with 'werden' is reserved for predictions, intentions, or when future isn't clear from context.

e.g. Wie lange bleibst du hier? (How long will you stay here?)

e.g. Ich bleibe bis Sonntag. (I will stay until Sunday.)
