

CONTEXT FOR ASTRA

You are my German tutor. I am Kevin, Italian, level A2-B1. My lessons are taught in English by a native German speaker (Stefanie). Today we are reviewing: Verbs with Prepositions

Sections covered: 25. Nicos Weg, 29. Liste Verben mit Präposition

LESSON SUMMARY

Kevin and Stefanie worked extensively on verbs requiring specific prepositions (Verben mit Präpositionalergänzung), covering structures like "sich freuen auf/über," "sich gewöhnen an," "sich entscheiden für," and "abhängen von." They discussed the critical difference between prepositions (auf vs. über with "freuen"), practiced forming questions with "wo-" compounds (womit, worauf), and compared German reflexive structures to Italian equivalents. Kevin also reviewed episode 6 of Nicos Weg, understanding vocabulary like "mittlerweile," "Formular ausfüllen," and "festes Einkommen." Stefanie emphasized that many German verb-preposition combinations mirror Italian more closely than English, making recognition easier for Kevin.

GRAMMAR POINTS

Verbs with prepositions (Verben mit Präpositionalergänzung)

→ Many German verbs require specific prepositions that govern either accusative or dative case. The preposition cannot be changed and must be memorized with the verb as a fixed unit. The case after two-way prepositions (an, auf, über) is fixed by the verb, ignoring spatial logic.

e.g. Ich freue mich auf das Wochenende. (I look forward to the weekend.)

e.g. Es hängt davon ab, ob es regnet. (It depends on whether it rains.)

Difference between 'sich freuen auf' and 'sich freuen über'

→ Sich freuen auf (+ Akk) expresses anticipation for something in the future. Sich freuen über (+ Akk) expresses happiness about something that has already happened or is happening now. Both always take accusative case.

e.g. Ich freue mich auf das Konzert. (I'm looking forward to the concert - it's in the future.)

e.g. Ich freue mich über das Geschenk. (I'm happy about the gift - I already have it.)

Da-compounds with prepositions (darauf, davon, daran)

→ When referring back to things (not people) with prepositions, German uses da- + preposition. If the preposition starts with a vowel, use dar- + preposition (darauf, daran, darüber). This replaces constructions like 'on it', 'from it', 'to it'. Da-compounds are gender and case neutral.

e.g. Hast du an das Treffen gedacht? - Ja, ich habe daran gedacht. (Did you think about the meeting? - Yes, I thought about it.)

e.g. Worauf freust du dich? - Ich freue mich darauf. (What are you looking forward to? - I'm looking forward to it.)

Wo-compounds in questions (womit, worauf, wovon)

→ When asking questions about things (not people) with prepositions, German uses wo- + preposition. If the preposition starts with a vowel, use wor- + preposition (worauf, woran, worüber). This replaces 'with what', 'on what', 'from what'. For people, use preposition + wen/wem.

e.g. Womit fängst du an? (With what do you start? / What are you starting with?)

e.g. Worauf freust du dich? (What are you looking forward to?)

Reflexive verbs with prepositions

→ Many German verbs that require prepositions are also reflexive. The reflexive pronoun (mich, dich, sich, uns, euch, sich) comes after the conjugated verb and before the preposition. Common patterns: sich freuen auf/über, sich erinnern an, sich interessieren für, sich ärgern über, sich gewöhnen an.

e.g. Ich interessiere mich sehr für klassische Musik. (I'm very interested in classical music.)

e.g. Erinnerst du dich an das Wort? (Do you remember the word?)
